

ERIC WHITACRE
DEEP FIELD

DEEP FIELD

THE IMPOSSIBLE MAGNITUDE OF OUR UNIVERSE

Grammy® award-winning American composer Eric Whitacre's symphonic work Deep Field was inspired by the world's most famous space observatory, the Hubble Space Telescope, and its greatest discovery – the iconic Deep Field image. The film – Deep Field: The Impossible Magnitude of our Universe – illuminates the score by combining Hubble's stunning imagery, including never-seen-before galaxy fly-bys, with bespoke animations to create an immersive, unforgettable journey from planet Earth to the furthest edges of our universe.

The score and film paint the incredible story of the Hubble Deep Field. Turning its gaze to a tiny and seemingly dark area of space (around one 24-millionth of the sky) for an eleven day period, the Hubble Space Telescope revealed over 3,000 galaxies that had never previously been seen, each one composed of hundreds of billions of stars.

Produced by film composer John Powell, the soundtrack features Virtual Choir 5 representing 120 countries: over 8,000 voices aged 4 to 87, alongside the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and Eric Whitacre Singers.

The film is a first-of-its-kind collaboration between Grammy® award-winning composer & conductor Eric Whitacre, producers Music Productions, scientists and visualizers from the Space Telescope Science Institute and multi award-winning artists 59 Productions. The film premiered on November 16, 2018 on YouTube accompanied by an exclusive VIP screening Kennedy Space Center Visitor Complex. Deep Field will be seen in presentations in museums, galleries, at festivals and science/music events worldwide. It will also be projected at concert performances, with the score performed live, with orchestra and chorus.

Deep Field is inspired by one of the most important scientific discoveries of all time: the Deep Field images captured by the Hubble Space Telescope. Their discovery is a tale of human aspiration, endeavor, wonder and extraordinary scientific vision.

When NASA launched the Hubble Space Telescope in 1990 they soon realised that the images it returned were coming back blurred. This was due to a tiny aberration on Hubble's primary mirror – NASA engineers and astronauts fixed the problem by basically putting the equivalent of a contact lens on the telescope. Following this, Hubble started returning breathtakingly clear images of deep space.

In 1995 Bob Williams, then Director of the Space Telescope Science Institute, pointed Hubble at a completely empty area of sky, or at least blank to earthbound telescopes. Over a series of 10 days and 385 separate exposures Hubble collected as much light as possible and returned the Deep Field image. Every object you see in that image is a galaxy. To me this is the most important image produced in human history; we not only see the impossible magnitude of space – how truly large it is – but we can really feel for the first time how truly small we are. This image became for me the inspiration for the piece Deep Field, which is written for orchestra, choir and smartphone app.

So that was where my inspiration for Deep Field came from; the next stage was to think about how I could construct a piece based on this epic story.

I knew that I wanted to build and plateau – the idea being that, like Hubble itself, the music would be out of focus, flirt with being in focus, and then finally when we see the Deep Field image being returned in focus we get the climax. I illustrated the story of Hubble – and in particular the efforts made by NASA to repair the telescope during its early days – through four musical themes or “cells”. These represent the initial failure of the telescope, the aspiration and struggle to repair it and then finally the resolution as the telescope began functioning correctly. At the climax I wanted to convey an experience that is like reaching out and touching the face of God. My goal was to get the listener to feel the same sense of wonder I get when looking at the Deep Field image, almost like a religious experience.

STScI | SPACE TELESCOPE
SCIENCE INSTITUTE

SPACE TELESCOPE SCIENCE INSTITUTE

Founded in 1982, we have helped guide the most famous observatory in history, the Hubble Space Telescope. Since its launch in 1990, we have performed the science operations for Hubble. We also lead the science and mission operations for the James Webb Space Telescope (JWST), planned to launch in 2021. We will perform parts of the science operations for the Wide Field Infrared Survey Telescope (WFIRST), in formulation for launch in the mid-2020s, and we are partners on several other NASA missions.

Our staff conducts world-class scientific research; our Barbara A. Mikulski Archive for Space Telescopes (MAST) curates and disseminates data from over 20 astronomical missions; and we bring science to the world through internationally recognized news, education, and public outreach programs. We value our diverse workforce and civility in the workplace, and seek to be an example for others to follow.

In February 2018, 59 Productions opened the Ecsite Award-winning permanent exhibition, Made in Space, at the Tycho Brahe Planetarium, Denmark's most advanced centre for popular astronomy and space research. The installation was designed and built by 59 Productions creating a seamless correspondence between the physical space and the cutting-edge interactive and immersive technologies.

ROYAL PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

For more than seven decades the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra (RPO) has been at the forefront of music-making in the UK. The Orchestra's regular performances at its London home Cadogan Hall are complemented by a distinguished series at the Royal Festival Hall, a hugely popular series at the Royal Albert Hall, frequent visits to its seven principal regional residencies across the UK, together with the work of its award-winning community and education department RPO Resound. With a wider reach than any other UK large ensemble, the RPO has truly become Britain's national orchestra.

Alongside its concert series and busy international touring schedule, the RPO embraces twenty-first-century opportunities, including recordings with pop stars and on film and television soundtracks, whilst its artistic priority remains paramount: the making of great music at the highest level for the widest possible audience. This would have been lauded by its Founder and first conductor, Sir Thomas Beecham, who set up the RPO in 1946, leading a vital revival in the UK's orchestral life after World War II. As the RPO proudly looks to its future, its versatility and high standards mark it out as one of today's most open-minded, forward-thinking symphony orchestras.

ERIC WHITACRE SINGERS

The Eric Whitacre Singers have established themselves as one of the finest ensembles of our day. Drawing-in audiences with a wide spectrum of age, interests and backgrounds, the choir performs music from the Renaissance to contemporary, including Lauridsen, Britten and the work of their founder and conductor, Eric Whitacre. They received exceptional and unanimous praise from critics and won a GRAMMY® award for Best Choral Performance for their debut album, Light & Gold on Decca/Universal. Their second album, Water Night went straight to no. 1 in the classical iTunes and Billboard charts. Regularly recording in London's Abbey Road and Air Studios, the choir feature on Eric's own label, UNQUIET, and on the soundtracks of Hollywood movies.

Celebrated performers in concert halls and sacred spaces on both sides of the Atlantic, the Eric Whitacre Singers made their BBC Proms debut in 2012 in a programme that included a collaboration with singer/songwriter Imogen Heap. The EWS were honored to sing at the Templeton Prize Laureate Ceremony for Archbishop Desmond Tutu alongside world-renowned singer and songwriter Annie Lennox, and the London African Gospel Choir. They work regularly with British soul superstar Laura Mvula, and featured at iTunes Festival, broadcast live to 119 countries, performing with Hans Zimmer. In 2018 the singers appeared at an experiential installation for fashion designer Anya Hindmarch CBE.

"Astronomy has long permeated the arts, from architecture to poetry and literature to music. Together they enrich the human experience by allowing us to interpret the world around us in ways we can understand and push the boundaries of discovery further than we ever thought possible. The Hubble Space Telescope has not only transformed the science of astronomy, but also has revealed the beauty and richness of the fabric of the Universe. That the Hubble Deep Field became a source for musical inspiration to composer, Eric Whitacre, comes as no surprise. The image is emotionally stunning and intellectually inspiring."
